REMOTE CONTROL TOILET FLUSHED WITH SUCCESS!

Now you see it, now you don't. Trakka's Switch Mode Bathroom (SMB) provides maximum versatility with minimum space.

Never one's to rest on their laurels; the clever designers at Trakka have done it again. In seeking a solution to one of motorhoming's age-old conundrums – maximising space efficiency – they developed the concept of a bathroom with retracting toilet.

Then, using the latest computer aided design software and a good dose of humour, they made the concept a world-first reality: the Switch Mode Bathroom – or SMB.

A registered design with a worldwide patent pending, the SMB provides the best of both worlds; a spacious bathroom for showering and a full-size toilet for, well, you know...

“The key to this ingenious design is the motorised toilet unit, which at the press of a button retracts into the wall beneath the hand basin. Press another button and it glides out again. And there's no need to worry; in case of electrical failure there's manual backup, so you'll never be caught short.” said Dave Berry, Trakka's Managing Director.

More than just a gimmick, the Switch Mode Bathroom is a highly innovative solution providing a generously sized bathroom in the smallest possible space. Already, Trakka is negotiating with several overseas manufacturers keen to license their technology.

The SMB is standard in the newly-released Trakka Jabiru and Torino range (except Torino Standard) and will feature in the upcoming Fresco and Trakkaway models.
